The new Santa Barbara Airport Airline Terminal is nearing completion and is expected to become fully operational this summer. The $63 million project includes a new aircraft parking ramp, a new airline terminal building, relocation and rehabilitation of the 1942 portion of the existing terminal, and a new short-term parking lot and roadway. The 72,000 square foot terminal was designed in the tradition of the Spanish Colonial Revival architectural style which defines Santa Barbara's local culture and sense of place.

Some of the passenger benefits of the new terminal are:

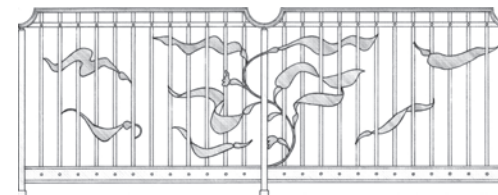

- More comfortable seating areas
- More efficient airline check-in
- Enhanced baggage claim area
- Improved food service and concessions
- Adequate parking and access
- Centralized services under one roof
- Protection from rain and weather
- Preservation of ambience

THE NEW SANTA BARBARA AIRPORT AIRLINE TERMINAL

The new Airline Terminal is registered with the U.S. Green Building Council Leadership in Energy & Environmental Design (LEED), the nationally recognized benchmark for design, construction and operation of high performance green buildings. The building was designed and built with the goal of a "Gold" LEED rating that includes storm water design, water wise landscaping, energy efficiency, recycling, use of local building materials and indoor environmental air quality. The Airline Terminal will be one of a handful of commercial service airports in the nation to achieve a LEED rating for new construction.

As an important community gateway, the Airport is committed to providing a venue for public art that enriches the visitors experience and reflects the history and culture of the region. In keeping with this mission, the Public Art Program is comprised of three elements: commissioned art, long-term loan of existing art, and rotating exhibits of regional art. The Program was initiated with three commissioned art works and the loan of four art works. After the terminal is operational, the rotating exhibits will begin.

The Santa Barbara Airport is a self-supporting enterprise owned and operated by the City of Santa Barbara, serving over 750,000 passengers annually.

The Alice Keck Park Memorial Garden on Micheltorena Street is a water wise demonstration garden in Santa Barbara.

WATER SAVINGS SHINE IN DEMONSTRATION GARDENS AND LANDSCAPING REBATES

The summer months are when water use increases due to outdoor irrigation. To reduce this upward trend of water use, you can update your landscaping and irrigation to one that is more water wise. To see sustainability at work, you can visit a water wise demonstration garden in Santa Barbara. They include:

- Alice Keck Park Memorial Garden on Micheltorena Street
- Firescape Garden on the corner of Mission Ridge Road and Stanwood Drive
- Lifescape Garden/Chumash Point Ethnobotanic Preserve at Santa Barbara City College
- Santa Barbara Botanic Garden on Mission Canyon Road

The City's latest episode of "Inside Santa Barbara" now airing on Channel 18 has a segment on water wise demonstration gardens. Also, if you would rather have a virtual demonstration garden tour, check out our online searchable plant database which has photos of hundreds of plants that use little water, as well as 26 local water wise garden "tours."

To help make your garden more water wise, the City's Smart Landscape Rebate Program covers half the expense of materials with up to $1,000 for single-family homes and up to $4,000 for businesses and homeowner associations. The rebate covers 50 percent of improvements to irrigation systems as well as water wise plants and mulch; the rebate must be preapproved before work is started. For more information, call 564-5460 or go to www.SantaBarbaraCA.gov/Water.
